pinions which I intimated on Tuesday last respecting the backwardness of the preparations on the Champs de Mars, and the inconveniences and bad taste of many of the arrangements made by the Commission, begin to be loudly echoed by some of the organs of the French press. Many of the remarks made are very severe; more so than I should have ventured to make myself. But the the subject, and which I prefer sending you from a French point of view to taking the responsibility of such criticism wholly upon myself. Thus, for instance, one journal, the Epogue, declares the Commission to have "lost itself in detail." and the Park to resemble "Sebastopo after the assault," or "the world in a state of chaos." The agglomeration of "theatres, cafes, and gimeracks of all sorts" is pronounced to be "ridiculous," and im vorthy of a great industrial and civilimanifestation, and wanting only "greased poles, soaped pigs'-tails, and dancing booths" to be complete. The immease development given to the eating and drinking and bar department, and the idea of a "theatre where people will pay at the loor," are ridiculed and pronounced to ere way of extracting more money out of the pockets of the public in order to make the Exhibition "pay." The Com-mission is accused of acting like people who give soirces without being rich enough o afford it, and expect their guests to pu money under the candlesticks to help to pay the expenses! With some allowance or exaggeration of language, there is too nuch truth in the above remarks.

Again, if I turn to the Presse, I find remarks still more strikingly confirmatory of my own. The prices of season tickets are pronounced to be quite too high. The Exhibition Building is described as vast but without grandenr, low, and heavy. The aspect of the interior is spoken of almost in the very terms I lately used: the oval form permits of no except of view; the eye falls upon column after column like a moving wall, as you advance. 38 acres, "space is wanting!" Exhibition being anything "for opening on the lst of A

The fact is that the mission appear to have made several rather serious mistakes and miscalcula-tions. In the first place, it has regarded scientific arrangement too much, and gen-cral effect too little; or rather, perhaps, it has not appreciated correctly what the latter would be. The Freuch are very fond of "scientific arrangement;" they excol in it, and no doubt it is a very good thing in its way. But it does not do to sacrifice everything to it; especially in so "popular" an undertaking as a Universal Exhibition, where beauty, attractiveness. and agreeableness of aspect are essential elements of success. Three-fourths of people who propose to visit Paris this ner will be drawn hither by the hope pleasure and amusement, blended, in-ed, with instruction. But, if they fail o find the former, they will speedily turn heir backs upon the latter, and be off to breathe fresh air in the mountains of witzerland, instead of being "scomshed in the hot, close passages of such a huge bazaar as that erecting on the Champs le Mars. Pursuant to notice, a large number of citizens of Mudison, Garrard, and Lincoln counties assembled at Paint Lick Church, in Garrard county, on Friday, the 8th of March, 1867, for the purpose of considering the proposition of the "Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company," to build a branch road from Stanford, via Lancaster, to Richmond.

to Richmond.

On motion of J. A. Beazley, Esq., J. M. Shackelford, of Madison, was called to the Chair, and J. H. Bruce, of Garrard, appointed Secretary.
On motion of Sabrit Doty, Esq., a cor mittee was appointed to determine what amount of the $750,000 proportion should be raised by each county. Said committee consisted of R. G. Burton, W. Chenault, N. M. Moran, James A. Beazley, Sabrit Doty, and J. W. Walker, who, through their chairman. Col. Burton, reported as follows: $250,000 to be raised by the country of Garrard; Lincoln, $100,000. Madison, $100,000, and the right of way to be given by each county.

On motion of George Denny, Esq., Farrard, a committee consisting of Rutton and James A. Moran, of Madis Dr. Thomas Montgomery and Charles Rochester, of Lincoln; E. II. Burnside and James A. Beazley, of Garrard, was appointed to visit Louisville and solielt subscriptions from the business men and construction of the proposed road.

The following was then offered, which was adopted:

*Resolved, That whatever sum may be subscribed by the citizens of Louisville or the purpose aforesaid shall be ap-perceioned among the counties of Madi-on, Garraid, and Lincoln according to the amount each is required to raise.
I'ower was given to the committee said to appoint substitutes to visit Louis-ville in the event any member of the same shoul? not be able to attend. It was then resolved that S. P. Walters, of Madison; B. W. Dunn, of Liucoln, and W. H. Kinnaird, of Garrard, he requested o open a correspondence with the capita sts of the country and also the "Low-rille and Nashville Railtond Company, and accertain upon what terms the b can be sold provided said branch road is

A resolution was offered and adopted requesting the counties of Madison, Gar-rard, and Lincoln to open books for the subscription of stock in said road. On motion of Dr. S. L. Burdett, of Gar-rard, Resolved, That Lancaster ought to be made a point in the construction o said road, and that we will use our utmos forts to secure that end. Resulted, That the editors of the Louis Journal, Louisville Courier, Louis Democrat, the Industrial Gazette and all other papers in Louisville, and the Richmond Register be and they are re-spectfully requested to publish the pro-ceedings of this meeting.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE JUVENILE STABBING CASE. - Yestershaving from the shop of the Freedmen's ists. Surean, on Sunday evening at the corner of Eleventh and Chestnut, was up before the City Court yesterday morning. The wound was not so severe as was at first epresented to ns, but as the lrishman pertinently says, "It isn't often that a cut n the showldher will lame the leg." Johnny was in court. The fact of the other boy having performed a snrgical feat upon him was clearly proven. In fact, Florence acknowledged that he perpetrated the cutting, but did it in fun. The court thought the fun was on the "queerrough" order, and sent the case before the grand jury-a very wise and very just tion of the Board in Regard to fifteen years, in the delusive hope that the Enterprise. The Board of Trade met, as per adjournnent. at 72 o'clock last evening. Notwithstanding the inauspicious weather, there was a good attendance of members. On assuming the chair, Vice-President Armstrong stated that some of the committees were unprepared to report at this meeting as expected. He also announced that the committee appointed to collect the unpaid assessments had met with great success, and were confident that further efforts would place the finances of the Board in a sound condition. There be-tion of dispatches were continued until the next meeting. The Chairman stated that, as it had een agreed upon at the last meeting to remove into the new rooms of the Board ver the Ormsby House on the ensuing Weduesder, the members were urged and expected to assemble there on that day at 121 o'clock P. M. A splendid lunch will be spread for the members on that occasion, and the inauguration of the new rooms bids fair to be an event as convivial as interesting.

It was then aunounced by the Chairman that delegations from the counties of Madison and Garrard were in the city to ascertain if they could secure any assistance from the city of Louisville in building the Branch rail road from Richmond to Louisville via Stanford. The gentlemen composing these delegations are: Major R. G Burton and J. A. Moran, of Madison county; J. A. Beasley and E. H. Burnside, of Gar rard county. They have not come to the city officially, but by invitation. In explanation of the objects of their visit, Mr. Armstrong said that the three counties to be traversed by the proposed railway were expected to subscribe stock as follows: Madison county, $100,000; Garrard county, $250,000: Lincoln county, $100,000. The delegations apprehend that these large amounts will defeat the enterprise, and they desire Louisville to come forward and aid them to the extent of $200,000. If this is done, the counties named, it is confidently asserted, will raise the balance, and thus insure the complete success of the andertaking. Mr. Armstrong thought that the best way to proceed in the matter would be through the mnnicipal authorities. All the people of Louisville would ask of the Council would be to submit the sition in question to a popular vote. The Chairman and several members expressed the utmost confidence that in such case the verdict of the people would be overwhelmingly in favor of the subscription. A GOOD DAY FOR SOLDIERS. Col. Barleycorn Assumes Com mand. Station-houses Stormed and Captured. Pay-Day in the City Court.

Last Saturday evening, the 45th U. S infantry having received their regular rations of greenbacks, was devoted ex clusively to fun and frolic by the hilariou 'blue birds." A large detachment of then came over the Rhine from Jeffersonville on a "bully lark" intent. They had not been long within the corporate limits be fore they discovered some of the many re eruiting stations opened in our city by Col. Jack Barleyeorn, who is busily en gaged, night and day, in raising reernits for stationhouse duty. Having gone through the enlistment mill before, and being familiar with the ropes-namindful of the fact that they had already taken service under their Unele Samuel-the festive warriors joined the standard of the Bour bon; and, as they were old veterans, requiring no instruction in the School of the Soldier. Col. Barleveorn at once placed himself at the head of his new recruits. and moved upon the works of the enemy in the jungles of Marshallonia. THE ARMY OF INVASION The aggressive movement or the army of invasion was wholly unexpected by the forces of the Amazons. Indeed, the first intimation they had of the attack was when the grand army of Barleycorn drew up in front of their works, deployed skirmishers, posted artillery, and made every demonstration of attack. Having been an "Army Correspondent" during the latwar, and "snuffing the battle from afar," we repaired to the territory in which the hostile armies were operating, and are hence able to give our readers a detailed and accurate history of the campaign of Saturday in advance of all contemporaries. lu order to begin at the beginning. and our straight, unvarnished tale unfold from its Alpha to its Omega, we conceiv it essentially necessary to place on record the roster of the two forces, in order to relieve future historians of "our country's brave defenders"-Parson Abbott, author of the romance of "Napoleon Bonaparte" and "sich" -of a great deal of unnecessary laboria hunting up the materials that will form the "body" of the chapter on the Marshallouian Campaign. The grand army of invasion consisted of the following twenty-two "true and tried" veterans of the old guard, to-wit: Joseph Nelson, Joseph Lewis, Silas Johnson, Thomas Connell, J. T. Breekens, John Gorman, John O'Donald, Ed. Phelps, Peter Piper, H. Hann, H. P. Crain, F. Hawks, H. Fox, John Mack, George Harlowe, James Farnham. Jack Everhardt, Henry Timmens. William Burks, David Bergen, and J. D. Perkins. This invincible dry-land Armada was commanded in person by the callant Barleveorn-"a commander who never met a reverse and never suffered a defeat '-the hero of many millions of hard-fought battles, and the victor on every field.

ROSTER OF THE ENEWY. The enemy under the personal command of that veteran Amazon warrioress, Julia Dean, were drawn up in admirable order behind their fortifications, and consisted of the divisions of Mesdames Annic Campbell, Sallie Bell, Elvira Glover, Nettie Sterling, Jennie Riley, Fannie Cox Maggie Ford, Len Biley, Sallie aggerated. Green, Kate Knapp, Ellen Sharp. Mollie Ryan, Mollie Baldwin, Rose Geteeier, Kate Hastings, Mollie Slaughter Ann Cook and Fannie Fay. These are all experienced officeresses, and their

As the serried colums of Barleycorn deployed in line of battle before the works of Marshallonia, the army of the fens comressed their tilters, adjusted their water falls and spit-curls, licked their lips, and prepared to meet the onset of the avading host. The skirmishers in olue, whenever their eagle eyes chanced to detect a Marshallonian nouth open, immediately, and with deadly recision, fired a half pint shot from s Parrot bottle into it. So accurate was their aim that in less than four hours prone stretched upon the ground lay more than one half of the army of the Amazons. The falling off of the fire of oaths and vituperations from the enemy's forts assured the quick-witted commanderin-chief of our army that the loss of the enemy must be very heavy. In order to test the fact, and ascertain if the enemy had available reserves at hand, he idered a sham assault, a fcint that was a favorite dodge with the late General B. F. Butler-though that eminent warrior afterward pretended that he was in earnest at Fort Fisher-an order which was promptly and gallantly obeyed. STORMING THE WORKS. What was at first intended for a strategic move turned out to be a glorious reality. Our intrepid troops, discovering the crippled condition of the garrison, could not be restrained, but rushed pell-mell over abatis and ditch, with deafening and satanie vells, scaled the walls of the fort. and in less time than it takes us to write the glorious word "vietory!" the terror-strick en and depleted garrison were prisoners of war, and the all-conquering Barleycorn was the conqueror and subjugator of Marshallonia.

- FOREIGN INTERVENTION, As usual with all conquering armies he enemy's city was given up to the soldiers, who immed ately commenced sacking it. Not dreaming that intelligence of his military movements had gone abroad, and not anticipating resistance from those citizens of Marshallonia who had not taken up arms against him, the usually vigilant Barleycorn neglected to post pickets and vedettes, or indeed to take any precaution to guard against surprise (We should have stated, in the prope connection, that, when our troops took possession of the enemy's works, amon those eaptured was the venerable Lou. Cash, who, some quarter of a century ago, was the Quartermaster-General of Marshallonia.) On account of this failure to take necessary precautionary measures the England of our city, the Policeme possessing more nerve than old England over the water, decided to deelare the independence of Marshallonia effected, and, o prove by their acts that their sympathy was active and solid and not lip-bravery and hollow, they organized and dispatched an armed force to the assistance of the bèleaguered and vanquished Amazons. "The shades of night were failing fast. The storm-king rode upon the hiast, And shrilly blew the hugle wind—" fortnnes of war threw in their way. They were surprised, overpowered, and in turn risoners to the foreign foe. Before the clocks upon the minarets of Marshallonia olled the hour of ten darkness and silence were the sole possessors of the recent battle-field, and the victors of the day were manaeled prisoners in the dungeons of the station-houses.

END OF THE WAR. Yesterday morning, when the gallan nt glorious army of the invasion awoke n prison, they discovered that the comnander who had led them to signal vicory on the day before—the great captain whom they had placed their trust; the Iron Duke of Bonrbon," John Barleyorn, who had never been known before turn his back npon his soldiers, though ne had been known "many a time and oft' to turn them upon their backs-had deserted them. Mortified and chagrined, in the first moment of indignation, they met in mass meeting, and resolved to appeal to Judge Craig. Drawing up the necessary charges and specifications, at niue o'clock A. M., they appeared in a body at the Police Court and preferred their complaint. Judge Craig, however. proved a broken reed to lean upon. After learning all the circumstances leading to and consequent upon the invasion of Marshallonia, he decided that the whole proceeding was unconstitutional, and, after levying fines ranging from three to five dollars npon each other and private of the gallant but ill-starrel army of invasion, he turned them over to a sergeant and guard who were in waiting to escort them with the honors of war to their camp in Jeffersonville. And thus began, progrossed and ended the invasion of Marshallonia. DISGRACEFUL SCENES IN THE NEVADA LEGISLATURE. - A dispatch from Carson of the Sth inst, by the way of San Francisco, says the Nevada Legislature adjourned sine die at midnight. The Governor, before it adjourned, said the Legislature had brought no credit to themselves not the State, no revenue bill had been passed. the State was without credit, and that evening it had been refused credit for one hundred pounds of flour for the State Prison; within twenty days it would have to turn the prisoners loose to seek a living for themselves.
